Something wonderful is about to happen.
Allure Security Technology introduces a new way to secure your data.

Data Leak Prevention (DLP) is a first step towards securing your data, but it does not prevent your sensitive information from being stolen and misused. Allure's new breakthrough technology enhancing DLP with traceable "decoy information" raises the level of protection to new unprecedented levels of safety and security.

Every organization can easily deploy and immediately enjoy the protection provided by Allure Security Technology. Our team of highly skilled engineers will develop custom solutions for your organization that may operate on your company's existing servers. Our technology scales to meet the needs of large global enterprises.

For the first time, Chief Security Officers will have new insight into the day-to-day operations of their enterprise Information Technology and quickly identify and avoid the potential exfiltration of their company's sensitive information.
