When reading where they were made, it was in a town that I spent lots of time in, Fuglino Valdarno—it was at the base of the Appenines on the way to Pietrapiana—Valbonkrosa—up where I used to stay in a farmhouse with Meppino and Isabella—he died at 92 last October and she five years ago. Interesting. He might be, though George W, on the advice of Paulson, started the bailout process to prevent the economy crashing even though he was for free market.

I've been to see dad a few times since the last report. He is improving in the following ways: the lung issues are improving -- less coughing, little sign of congestion in his breathing, and doctors told us this morning that he has definitely turned the corner. Dad is making good progress with tummy issues too -- his stomach is softening up (it used to be bloated looking and tight to the touch) indicating that the internal bleeding is receding. He is off pain meds but still takes an assortment of drugs.

The downside is that he didn't sleep well two nights ago because of a case of persistent hiccups. He still has hiccups which the doctor this morning says will subside as the internal bleeding issues subside but the fact of there existence is annoying. More importantly, dad seems to be running very low on energy. The attached picture shows him at 9:02am this morning. During our visits this morning at 900am and then at 1145am dad was lethargic. He has a hard time opening his eyes. This has been the case for the past couple of days. His speech is sluggish, he mentioned he was confused, and he just lacks energy. The doctors are urging him to put energy into his body, to eat protein and he is complying. Once he gets some strength back he will be out of the hospital much quicker.

Yesterday dad was sleeping soundly around 230pm when Frank from the Trellis Spa at the Houstonian came to clip dad's hair. It's rare to see him sleep soundly so I asked Frank if he would mind waiting until dad awoke. So Frank waited thirty minutes then clipped his hair in bed. Dad was a very cooperative, thoughtful customer carrying on small talk with Frank (a gay fellow who has cut his hair for 18 years) through his slurred speech. Dad coughed a deep, side splitting cough and reassured Frank that he wasn't contagious. Always the gracious, good man, thinking of others.

All the nurses love working with dad, they work extra hours or have come in on days off. Today we met separately with the heart doctor, another pulmonary doctor, and with Amy the internal doc that reports to Lenz. They are all optimistic that he will go home.

Mom has told dad that he is going to Florida and he acknowledges it as a fact. Mom (and Laura Pears) are counting on everyone coming to Boca.

Your worried but hopeful,

Brother Neil
PS Coleman has been great. Sadly Coleman who just moved to Houston when mom and dad returned from Maine and lives in an apartment building downtown got mugged walking to a sports bar. Some guy knocked him to the ground from behind, he hit his head on the ground and was robbed of his watch. See Coleman with black eyes resulting from his nose getting whacked.

That is we are calling the 3 young men who will start working for your parents this Saturday. They are all Navy veterans. They all have some kind of medical training. They have all signed confidentiality agreements. They all appear to be the kind of young men you would want sitting in your parents' house, watching over them.

As you know, talking your parents into this has not been easy. I think all of you have tried and failed. And I have had several spectacularly failed conversations in the last two years.

The fact they are veterans is huge. That really has been key. And the fact we are NOT calling them home healthcare workers is important. God forbid.

Your father confided yesterday he did not need them, but he is doing this for your mother's peace of mind....

They will work from roughly 8 a.m. until bedtime on Saturday-Sunday, and from 3 p.m. until bedtime on weekdays.

Your parents do not think they need them all night long, but that option is very much on the table. The nearby Secret Service agents, and the panic buttons scattered throughout the house including on your father's wrist, makes this decision OK for now. But I think it will change within a year, once your parents get comfortable with them and this.

Your mom may or may not tell you this news, but in case she didn't, I wanted to be sure you knew, because I know it will help you sleep better.

Jean

Heaven has a distinct new smell
The good news: They are hoping to resolve the bowel problem with the help of Pepto Bismol. They might resort to an enema. As an aside Dad claims that Rudy, one of his able nurses, gave him an enema recently while he was shuffling to the rest room. Just stuck it in him while he was standing ... he made it sound like a surprise. More importantly the bloating caused by internal bleeding will get better now that his cough is much better. In fact the swelling on the right side of his body has shrunk, the bruise is gone, and dad has good color in his face. So long as he doesn't cough persistently the left side will heal naturally. Dad asked when he might go home and the doctor forecast Friday. I'd personally be surprised if he were released Friday and feel that dad isn't buying that prognosis either. He still jokes with the nurses, he compliments every attendant (he has quite a few with different assignments), he stays up on recent events, but is very bored of the food, he can recite the menu verbatim. Nothing has changed in his attitude, still loving, considerate of others, etc. except for the first time he complains about pain.

We will keep you all informed.

Love,

Whit/ Neil

Mr. President, Governor, Doro, Marvin, Neil,

As I believe most, if not all, of you know I have decided to move on to a new professional opportunity with Shell Oil in Houston, TX. To say this was an easy decision would be a blatant lie – it has been one of the hardest I have ever faced. To have the privilege of working for your father has, to put it simply, been the honor of a lifetime. I am certainly preaching to the choir when I say that both your father and your mother are amazing people, and I have learned a great deal from both of them.

I cannot begin to tell you how blessed I feel to have had the opportunity to spend the last 11 years around you and your families. Thank you for making me feel a part of something great. I hope that over the years, through everything, I have served your father and your family to the best of my ability. And I hope that each of you know that no matter what, no matter where, no matter when, I will always be there should you or your parents have need.

My last day with your father will be this Friday, August 31st. Until I land in Houston in October my forwarding address will continue to be the office in Houston (10000 Memorial Drive, Suite 900, Houston, TX 77024). My e-mail will be appleby1983@gmail.com and my cell phone will remain the same: 713-470-7480. For the coming months, Coleman LaPointe (whom you all know from our office here in Maine) will take over my responsibilities. He can be reached at clapointe@flw.com or on his cell at 713-444-1747.

Again, and I cannot say this enough, it has truly been an honor. My most sincere and heartfelt thanks to each and every one of you. I look forward to seeing you down the road.

With best wishes,

Offspring of George and Barbara Bush:

Here is a quick update on what it appears will be happening in June at Walker's Point.

The USS George H.W. Bush is likely to do a drive-by visit the week of June 3rd. This is NOT definite, but the captain thinks we are now at 80 percent on getting this visit scheduled. The ship will not anchor but members of the Bush family will be helicoptered aboard for a visit with the crew. (Town folks can stand on shore and wistfully wave has it goes by.) Your dad has invited the crew to Walker's Point for lobster. I am not sure whom of the 3,000 sailors on board he has invited ...it was a general invitation. This of course will all change if the ship has to deploy unexpectedly. The Bush right now is the only aircraft carrier that is not deployed or in the shipyard. It's the "on call" carrier.

In a totally separate event, HBO is hosting the premiere of the documentary about your dad – produced and directed by Jeff Roth and now called "41" – on your Dad's birthday, June 12th. The documentary will be shown in a local theater, followed by a lobster bake under a tent at Walker's Point. (Your dad signed off on this when he was assured HBO would pay the bill.) Roughly 200 folks will be invited -- whatever family is around and can come, local friends, maybe some faraway friends. But the number will not exceed 200. So in Bush world, it will be fairly small.

All of us Bushes who are here, and more come tomorrow, are so happy to be he to celebrate Lauren and David both of whom we love very much. I just left two other people in Maine who really wish they could be here to celebrate David and Lauren too—and that’s Lauren’s grandparents—and Neil’s and my mom and dad. The problem is my Dad’s legs, which are not operating as they should these day prevent him from going places he really wants to be. But they both send their love to you and thank the Lauren’s for kindly coming to Maine to see them this summer.

I’ve been thinking long and hard about what to say tonight and the struggle I had, besides what on earth was I going to wear, is that from my very "unbiased" point of view, Lauren is truly very, very special. Ever since Lauren was little, she has been in tune with the world around her in an exceptionally thoughtful and considerate way. My Dad often says that the definition of a successful life must include service to others. Lauren, in her gentle but effective way has made serving others her life’s work. She’s found a way to take the blessings in her life, and pass them along to others. Lauren is ju

Doro

We are having one of the most special times of our lives here at the rectory. Thank you.

We are having some friends drop in this evening and tomorrow for cocktails.(between 6-8). We would love to have you just come a.i. if you’re in town. Kids are welcome too. there are a bunch here.

Another item: my son Seamus (21) and daughter Julia (19) are working in the Port this summer and have room rentals in Arundel. Is Bush Compound hiring? Seamus is a Poli Sci major 4.0 avg. and is a researcher for Peter Schweizer, a conservative author in Tallahassee. Seamus is a groundskeeper, an adept communicator and a good gopher! Julia has served as a receptionist and has good writing and people skills. They would be available to give any hours needed i.e. make it a top priority.

Any guidance on this is appreciated.

Thanks again for everything.

Jamie

Greetings Doro, Please let me know if Dad is getting out of the hospital. I will be very excited for the Bush family with him home for the holidays. Praying for a blessed and peaceful holiday for all of you!! I am keeping my holiday quiet and slow. No rushing around like a crazy lady and just my attentions on taking care of my husband while he is home. No one is coming home for the holidays and my son is working at fire station sooo that takes care of that. Maybe I'll cook for the firefighters and bring them some treats gluten free!! Please pass my wishes to your family and God Bless you all!! Love Beverly

Doro!

Here’s Sam’s stuff and I miss you too! Keep hearing your Dad is going to be fine from Jean. Hope and pray that’s true. Your father is so special to so many of our family, even as special as all their generation is.

On another note, I’ve gotten to know the author of a book on William Wilberforce (Hero for Humanity) which was the basis of the movie “Amazing Grace” which came out about 4-5 years ago and he lives in York or Kittery. Kevin Belmonte might be a great speaker for your summer BS in Kport. Good guy but Wilberforce is so one of my favorite historical people and it’d be a fun talk.

Lemme know if you’re interested.

Lots of love to you all,

Jamie.

Subject: Hi

Hi us, things not good.

Have had 3 cyclical "flares"—each tied to my cycle (I've had 3 since surgery); this can happen in 5% of post operative female patients. Each time, am put on large round of meds: Medrol pack for a week, Metaxalone 3x/day during daytime, 10mg Valium at night to stop calf spasm (only residual since pre-surgery: a vice grip on my calf which as soon as I sit or lie down, like clockwork, returns), then Hydro for pain. Then for 20 days they take me off...then cycle repeats itself, and I'm back on. if this happens 2 more cycles, I'm looking at secondary surgery.

Haven't been able to walk more than a 1/4 mile in over a month. Stairs/hills not possible.

Peter frustrated bc I cannot play in Autumn 4somes; paddle out this winter. He called me an "intellectual snob" the other night—out of nowhere. Hasn't been very compassionate in this...

I'm not sure of much anymore. Work is cranking which is good, and girls all doing well, but the pain by 4-5pm is back to an 8.

Am off of FB. Can't deal w the randoms anymore and couldn't believe a former liberal classmate of mine had the actual nerve to Snopes our Marines. WTF is wrong w people these days?

Anyway—sharing this w you privately, but not out of the woods. Such a vastly diff't recovery then ortho. Incredibly blessed, but have a feeling I'm looking at another surgery in about 2 months.

Intensely humbling physical experience.

Much love to you cus. Els keep bttw us. Chris doesn't know any of this. Don't really talk much to him these days.

Wishing I lived closer to DC right now. Missing Mom and Dad and feel I need to be present as they try and figure out next steps....hope all great on your end.

Xxx
Hey Ya’ll,

Earlier this fall a friend (Scott Buckhout) at the White House Faith Base Office contacted me about our group. He felt that we should be in touch with the First Lady again. We decided to wait until after the election and send her another invitation. I’m enclosing a copy of what I just sent–which Holly and I worked out. It is basically the same letter we all agreed to 4 years ago with some up to date changes suggested by Scott. He feels that now is a very good time to pursue this and he’s paving the way with her schedulers. I’m enclosing the letter for you to see. He said that if Grace and Carolyn also wanted to send this with an additional note through your connections that would be fine. He suggests you let Him know who you send it through so we can all be on the same page.

Once we hear back I’ll turn things over to Holly so she can make the plans.

I can fill you in further this morning when we are together.

Love to all, Susan Y
It is late. I wanted you to know that Dad did go out in the garden with Coleman. Pierce brought Jaylin by to see him. He did physical Therapy twice today. He did to quote the nurse "Poop". His color looked greats he smiled a lot. All in all a great day. Thought you'd be happy. Mom

A lot of this is your Campy's own words, out of All the Best. So he really did answer these. And some of it is because I know how to channel him!

Good luck.

Subject: Vietnam questions

Where were you during the Vietnam war and what did you think about military service?

I was elected to Congress in 1966, and then re-elected in 1968, so spent the middle part of the war in Washington. As a World War II veteran, I was very supportive of our troops.
Did your view of the war and US policy change as the war unfolded? Did any personal experiences during the war years significantly shape your views? Have your views changed since the war ended?

I visited Vietnam in 1968, which reassured me that our military was doing the best job they could under impossible circumstances. I came back even more worried about American's lack of understanding of what was happening, and the lack of support for our troops.

During the war years, did you believe that President Johnson and Secretary of defense Robert McNamara correctly analyzed the situation in southeast Asia and pursued the appropriate course in escalating war efforts?

I don't like to second guess Presidents. You do the best with the information you have at hand.

What other memories from this period could you share?

It was not America's best time... There was so much ugliness at home, between the battles over civil rights and the war. Everyone was angry about something.

I will tell you that my trip to Vietnam led to my most controversial vote in Congress. My district in Houston was very opposed to the Open Housing Act, which was an extension of the Civil Rights Bill of 1964. I became passionate about this issue when I saw young black soldiers fighting and dying for love of their country. Yet, when they came home, we were going to tell them where they could or couldn't live? So I voted "yes" for Open Housing. I took quite a hit from the voters back home -- my mail ran 500 to 1 against my vote. But I went back to Houston and conducted a town hall, and after they quit boooing and heard me out, I think they got it. (It's hard for you to understand today that we would even have to vote for something as simple and obvious as Open Housing. But it was a different era then, especially in the South. We've come a long, long way. Thank heavens.)

What lessons for Americans today do you see in the Vietnam war experience?

I am going to answer this as a former Commander in Chief. I think every President since Vietnam learned that before committing troops, you have to carefully define the mission, and also know what your exit strategy is. You also need to let the generals in the field fight the war, and not the politicians back home, or the generals in the Pentagon. This is what we did with Desert Storm in 1991. There was a general feeling after Desert Storm that our successful operation there restored faith in the military that had been missing since Vietnam. Everyone in America was proud of our troops and what they did in the desert of Kuwait. I was and am still very proud of that fact.

No black testicle jokes but he said the nurses were nice, but not very attractive. What happened was he was on no medication, plus exhausted, plus dehydrated, plus he had a giant martini which he should not be having. His blood pressure dropped very low. The reason he was unconscious for so long was that he passed out in the seated posit and was not laid flat. The blood could not get to the brain which could have caused a stroke or worse. We were very lucky. He's back from the hospital and down at the office!!

Report on Dad:

Honestly he's in bad shape. Yesterday mom reported and today the agents confirmed that as he was being moved from his bed he fainted, eyes rolled up in the head and he lost color to his face. Today he is a lot better. From conversation with the pulmonary doctor and nurse here's the scoop.

First the bad news: He's in a lot of pain and has been for many days caused by soreness from persistent coughing and bloating. The bronchitis led to bacterial and viral problems in the lung, complicating the cure. And the coughing has put so much stress on his muscles and system that every cough brings a grimace of pain. He talks openly about the pain. Mom undiplomatically says he looks like a beached whale his tummy is so inflated and he doesn't move around much because he is under the influence of an assortment of drugs including a pain killer. The tummy size is due first to internal blood pooling, initially on the right side of his body where you could see a very large bruise and now on the left side, and secondly from an abundance of trapped dukies in the bowels.

The good news: They are hoping to resolve the bowel problem with the help of Pepto Bismol. They might resort to an enema. As an aside Dad claims that Rudy, one of his able nurses, gave him an enema recently while he was shuffling to the rest room. Just stuck it in him while he was standing ... he made it sound like a surprise. More importantly the bloating caused by internal bleeding will get
