

DFI LINK

Forgot your password?

DFI LINK is a secure and robust knowledge management and communications portal for law enforcement, digital forensic examiners, and cyber investigators to share digital forensic information, promoting synergies to overcome the inherent challenges faced with the ever-changing digital environment whether protecting national security or fighting crime.

Participation is limited to law enforcement officials and digital forensic examiners from US federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies. In that DC3 and these members of the law enforcement community have mutually compatible and supportive missions, sharing official information is consistent with Department of Defense policy.

Participation may expand to include non-US members of the Five Eye countries. Because of the signed agreements that link the United States with Australia, Canada, England, and New Zealand, information sharing with these countries also is consistent with Department of Defense policy.

The Defense Cyber Crime Center (DC3) and Oklahoma State University's Center for Telecommunications and Network Security (CTANS) are joint partners in sponsoring the development and operation of the National Repository for Digital Forensic Intelligence (DFI Link).

The National Repository of Digital Forensic Intelligence (www.nrdfi.net) contains over a thousand shared documents that are not publicly available, and is under constant improvement to provide features and content tailored to the needs of our growing user community. Access to this website is limited to U.S. federal, state, and local law enforcement agencies and law enforcement officials from the countries that join the United States in the Five Eyes agreement (i.e., Australia, Canada, England, & New Zealand).

To gain access, simply fill out the form above. We will send you a vetting form for you to confirm your status in writing and then provide you with login credentials for the site. There is no cost to participate in DFI Link.
