Libyan Islamic Fighting Group aka Libyan Islamic Fighter Group	LIFG	1			Feb 2008	The Libyan Islamic Fighting Group (LIFG) is part of the Al-Qaida Global Jihad Support Network (formerly known as the North African Extremist Network or NAEN). LIFG was formed in 1992 and consisted of returning Libyan fighters from the Afghan-Soviet war who banded together for the purpose of overthrowing Qadhafi's government. Most of the fighters fought with UBL during the conflict and trained at the UBL sponsored Torkham Camp on the Afghanistan-

Al-Muhajiroun ala Ahlus Sunnah wal Jamaah aka al-Ghuraba aka the Saved Sect	ALM	5					Apr 2008		Note (Apr 2008): ALM began as a UK-based Islamic extremist group advocating armed struggle against the US and the West in pursuit of a world Islamic state. While ALM professes to be a non-violent proselytizing and intellectual movement, the group's rhetoric espouses violent jihad as a duty of all Muslims and opposes democracy as being contrary to Islam. ALM is predominantly involved in the recruitment, radicalization, and travel facilitation of potential jihadists in the UK and Western Europe. ALM recruits integrate into other terrorist networks that directly support or engage in jihad. In October 2004, ALM disbanded its UK organization due to increased law enforcement focus on the group following its vocal support for various terrorist attacks and al-Qaida led from Mecca to Medina to escape persecution.
