There is an inverse relationship between public access to the Internet and the inability of governments and institutions to control information flow and hence state allegiance, ideology, public opinion, and policy formulation. Increase in public access to the Internet results in an equivalent decrease in government and institutional power.

Indeed, after September 11, 2001, Internet traffic statistics show that many millions of Americans have connected to alternative news sources outside the continental United States. The information they consume can be and often is contrary to U.S. government statements and U.S. mainstream media reporting. Recognizing this, terrorists will coordinate their assaults with an adroit use of cyberspace for the purpose of manipulating perceptions, opinion, and the political and socioeconomic direction of many nation-states.

_Terror in Cyberspace: Terrorists Will Exploit and Widen the Gap Between Governing Structures and the Public, Feb. 1, 2002_
The information environment is the total of individuals, organizations, and systems that collect, process, disseminate, or act on information. The actors include leaders, decision makers, individuals, and organizations. Resources include the materials and systems employed to collect, analyze, apply, or disseminate information.

The information environment is where humans and automated systems observe, orient, decide, and act upon information, and is therefore the principal environment of decision making.

Even though the information environment is considered distinct, it resides within each of the four domains of air, land, sea, and space.

FINANCING

RIA GLOBAL, SPUTNIK USA: A figure of $9,436,900 is listed in RIA Global’s FARA filing which includes equipment, cost per article (by type) and radio program. It is unclear if the $9.4 million number includes the items below. https://www.fara.gov/docs/6524-Exhibit-AB-20180216-2.pdf

SPUTNIK RADIO: The FARA filing for Reston Translator’s carry-fee reads: The Client shall pay the Contractor a fee...in the amount of nine hundred thousand (900,000.00) US Dollars and 00 cents... The Parties determined the price for one (1) calendar month of broadcasting of the Client’s Radio Programs amounts to Thirty thousand (30,000.00) US Dollars and 00 cents. https://www.fara.gov/docs/6490-Exhibit-AB-20171115-2.pdf

RTTV: Listed a figure of $585,000 per month. https://www.fara.gov/docs/6496-Exhibit-AB-20171211-2.pdf

I estimate the salaries range from $125,000 for the top Russians and $40,000 to $60,000 for reporters, web staffers, radio production, etc. With 35-40 onsite employees, some part time (unknown hourly rate), that’s a fair amount of payroll. That number excludes contributions to the menu of health care they offer through the DC exchange.

Unknown if the figures include fee to vendors such as, telecommunications, payroll/ accounting, IT services or lease space at a prime K Street location.

There appears to be no shortage of funds for desktops, headphones, cable TV boxes.

VENDORS

Some vendors have few degrees of separation from Russia. For example, the payroll and accounting service http://www.nbaccorp.com/cpa-clients/ is run by Boris Foxman. According to his bio “Foxman serves on the advisory board for the State of Maryland Leningradsky Region Sister State Program, serves on the board for the Montgomery County Sister City Inc, and chairs the board of the American Association for Russian Language, Culture & Education. He served on the Gaithersburg Multicultural Committee, volunteered as a grant reviewer for the United Way, facilitated the Russian Art Project in Washington DC and sponsored the Alley of Russian Poets and Composers. He completed a Certified Financial Planner program at the College for Financial Planning in Denver, CO. Mr. Foxman graduated from the Tomsk Polytechnical Institute with Bachelor of Science in Robotics and completed an individualized program in accounting and economics at the Tomsk State University.”

The IT staff that stop by every month or so speak Russian. Software or hardware problems are conducted remotely from Moscow or somewhere in Russia.
SPUTNIK NEWS WIRE: WORK ENVIRONMENT

Over a 1 year and 10 month period there were 3 firings/releases, including my own, and 2 significant incidents

1. An editor was released for verbally abusing, challenging, chastising the behavior of Cara Rinkoff and Liuda Chernova. Peter Martinichev was the hiring authority.

2. Feinberg: I was not privy to the former White House reporter’s conversations with management on assignments and boundaries. On the day Feinberg was released, he walked into the Sputnik News Wire bullpen and stated, loudly, “I’ve been fired and I don’t know why.” Peter Martinichev was the hiring authority. Cara Rinkoff figured a bit in this firing.

3. John “Jeff” Stanton: I was released on 10 April 2018 in the morning by the office manager Yulia Zalevskaya. Peter Martinichev was the hiring authority but was not present nor was Mindia Gaveshali. I arrived and tried to log in to the computer system but was blocked. I reported to Yulia that I was locked out. Not long after that, she came into the Sputnik News bullpen and asked me to come with her in Gaveshali’s office. I did so. Once inside she handed me a three sentence letter indicating that I was being released. As SPUTNIK USA is an “at will” employer no reason was necessary or given. I asked her if it was “about the reporter”. She said, “It is not about you, a decision was made.” She told me to contact her if I needed COBRA (see The End).

4. Roughly 2-3 months ago Mindia Gaveshali came rushing in to the Sputnik Wire News bullpen and began yelling at staff asking who had said we should not bother covering negative stories about Sputnik USA. Kristin Dailey challenged him on his actions and stood him down.

5. In 2017, Mindia Gaveshali came into the Sputnik News Wire bullpen and yelled at an employee for eating at his desk. I was not in the office at the time but was told of the matter.

Workplace friction was the norm day in and say out. Some staff members bickered between themselves over voice levels, volume on the TV, edits I found myself caught up in it on rare occasions.

Not once over the 1 year and 10 month period was their ever an all-hands Sputnik News Wire editorial staff meeting. Reporters were Information Harvesters combing the WWW for story ideas. Once a story was found the might fit in the box, it had to be sent to designated editors (usually 2 Russian, 2 US). You’d not know if someone else had pitched the same idea. If they liked it, you might wait 5 to 30 minutes for approval. Sometimes they’d tell you it was already done or assigned to someone else.

I found that Peter Martinichev and Anastasia Shevaleva were very poor at office interpersonal relationships, Their hands-off management style was responsible for stoking staff bickering. In more that one instance, they would say nothing as employees argued loudly until it appeared matters might get out of hand. Only then would they utter something. They certainly are fine professional wordsmiths, for sure, and very good at English usage, but managing a newsroom by creating a team ethic and attitude was not their mission. One staff member would loudly drop F-Bombs at every turn. Another contributed MF-Bombs on occasion.

Rarely, there were awkward gatherings around a smallish circular table to celebrate Russian holidays. Champagne and wine would be served.

The Russians spoke often of work matters in their native language. In fact they spoke Russian more frequently than English. Makes sense until you realize that you are cutting out one-half of the staff from insights. That creates a natural divide. Who knows what they are talking or laughing about?

RIA Novosti staff sat behind the last row of reporters (where I sat). They seem far more team oriented and I believe they enjoyed their craft.

SPUTNIK WEBSITE: WORK ENVIRONMENT

I can’t comment directly other than to say it appears they enjoyed plying their wares as individuals in a team setting. The staff appeared to be all US citizens, younger and more diverse. Never heard any tirades from Web personnel. They were located in a different section of the floor.

SPUTNIK RADIO: WORK ENVIRONMENT

I can’t comment directly. The radio hosts on site that I met were all very professional from Brian Becker to John Kiriakou and everyone in between. I co-hosted a radio program and thoroughly enjoyed the experience.

OTHER: PERSONNEL

Beverly Hunt is SPUTNIK USA’s public relations staffer.

Yulia Zalevskaya replaced Anna Grineva as the SPUTNIK USA office manager 3-4 months ago.

One or two of the SPUTNIK RADIO hosts also have programs on WPFW FM,

Anna Varfolomeeva held a Pentagon Press Pass, Building Access. She left for another position not-affiliated with Sputnik.

NOTE: Pentagon Force Protection Agency was alerted by email to be on the lookout for SPUTNIK NEWS WIRE personnel who may attempt to obtain a
Pentagon Press Pass, Building Access. With those credentials one gets 24/7 access and can roam the largely open JCS and the SECDEF hallways.

US INSTRUMENTS OF NATIONAL POWER

1. DIPLOMACY
2. INFORMATION
3. MILITARY
4. ECONOMIC
5. FINANCIAL
6. LAW ENFORCEMENT
7. INTELLIGENCE
8. PEOPLE/HUMAN CAPITAL

The eight pillars above allow the ideals in the Declaration of Independence to flourish. These same pillars ensure that the operational manuals for the United States and its democracy—the US Constitution and the Bill of Rights—remain vibrant and defensible. Weaken them enough and US democracy becomes an open question, not reality.

SPUTNIK USA Information Warfare and Open Source Intelligence operations are designed to target the second INP (#2) in hopes of disrupting and distorting the cognitive terrain of the eighth (#8).

- Disrupt the cognitive terrain
- Shape the cognitive environment in Russia’s favor

“International actors in the current era have awakened to the potential of such unconventional methods for compelling an enemy to do one’s will. Avoiding the advantages of U.S. military power, these international actors seek to erode the ability of the United States to employ that comparative advantage. Using the other instruments of power—especially the informational—they seek to employ what is variably referred to as “irregular,” “asymmetric,” or “unrestricted” warfare. Even when violence is joined, direct methods are generally avoided for the classic techniques of guerrilla warfare, terrorism, sabotage, subversion, and insurgency.”

Army Special Operations Forces, Unconventional Warfare, September 2008
OBSERVATIONS

Moscow calls the shots. Editors will bark out frequently: “What is Moscow doing?” “Let Moscow handle it.” Peter Martinichev frequently answers his telephone but always in Russian. At times he answers and swiftly leaves the premises returning in an hour sometimes not at all. I was told by one staff member that, “no one knows where he goes.”

Russian Embassy has a role. In one instance, Mike Hughes asked Martinichev, “Where are these from, Moscow? I don’t understand them, they are in Russian. Martinichev responded, “No they are from the Embassy and I will translate them for you.”

Russia plays the blame game, is always the victim, takes no responsibility for actions and denies any charges leveled at it. Chemical weapons attack by Assad was really a US false flag operation. There are no Russian nationals fighting in Ukraine. Post WWII system is rigged.

SPUTNIK NEWS WIRE is always chasing Reuters News. A common refrain throughout the day from the editors is “Reuters has flashed,” which is code for “we must flash too.” In the rare instances that SPUTNIK NEWS WIRE beats Reuters to the punch, self congratulatory remarks follow.

Subjectivism everywhere fosters the fatalistic mood of mind. It makes those who are already too inert more passive still; it renders wholly reckless those whose energy is already in excess.

All through history we find how subjectivism, as soon as it has a free career, exhausts itself in every sort of spiritual, moral, and practical license. Its optimism turns to an ethical indifference, which infallibly brings dissolution in its train. It transforms life from a tragic reality into an insincere melodramatic exhibition, as foul or as tawdry as anyone’s diseased curiosity pleases to carry it out.

William James, The Dilemma of Determinism

SPUTNIK NEWS WIRE, WEBSITE repackage facts and mix them with falsehoods. EG: Syria shot down 70 percent of cruise missiles launched against chemical weapons plants. Masters of Subjectivism.

RIA NOVOSTI ramped up its operations approximately one month ago. A couple of months after Alexey Nikolov, Managing Director of RT, visited with RIA Novosti staff earlier in 2018. Mikhail T. showed up and began to manage the RIA Novosti staff and hand out assignments, I believe. Prior to his arrival, staff would come and go and sometimes not be seen for days or weeks. During my last couple of weeks, I noticed that RIA Novosti staff (all 5) would come into the office, then usually disperse to the State Department and wherever else they hold credentials.

I am guessing that since SPUTNIK USA makes the news constantly in an appropriate negative light, and has lost what access it had to most of its credible SME’s and officials, it would make sense to ramp up the operations of the one group, RIA Novosti, that has flown under the media’s radar and still has a measure of access in Washington, DC.

SPUTNIK NEWS WIRE does not encourage initiative. With two exceptions (Liuda Chernova and Martin Seiff), Martinichev & Shevaleva keep tight control on where reporters are sent for coverage and what specific angle and questions they want asked. In one instance, Martin Seiff was sent to interview a Syrian group at the Watergate. He was provided by Shevaleva with a list of questions to ask. Liuda Chernova is the roaming reporter for Sputnik News Wire and travels from coast to coast covering subjects ranging from shootings in Texas, consulate closing in Seattle, energy conferences (attended one with Shevaleva and STRATCOM.

Martinichev & Shevaleva are notoriously tight lipped, reticent about where they travel when out of office for any amount of time. Staff is not informed of the whereabouts of other reporters (Liuda Chernova for example). They “clam up” when asked, “What are you doing this weekend?” It seems to be a sort of Russian force field that goes up when, as a gregarious American, you try to be friendly. I observed Cara Rinkoff trying to pry out of Shevaleva where Peter was during a week off.
Russians hide behind First Amendment, are aloof and arrogant. They do not believe their country’s government screwed around with our 2016 election or that they engage in IW, OSINT operations. They mock US efforts to stop their egregious behavior and laugh at TV news reports of sanctions or explosions. They are in Washington, DC, not Moscow. They are always the victims.

Russians operate from a position of weakness. Any positive statement from a US official about Russia is jumped on. Any positive comments on US-Russia cooperation using the deconfliction line in Syria is amped up. If a State Department official says that the US and Russia can cooperate in certain areas, that is “big news” for them.

“Russian efforts to influence the 2016 US presidential election represent the most recent expression of Moscow’s longstanding desire to undermine the US-led liberal democratic order, but these activities demonstrated a significant escalation in directness, level of activity, and scope of effort compared to previous operations. We assess Russian President Vladimir Putin ordered an influence campaign in 2016 aimed at the US presidential election. Russia’s goals were to undermine public faith in the US democratic process, denigrate Secretary Clinton, and harm her electability and potential presidency. We further assess Putin and the Russian Government developed a clear preference for President-elect Trump. We have high confidence in these judgments.

Russia’s state-run propaganda machine—comprised of its domestic media apparatus, outlets targeting global audiences such as RT and Sputnik, and a network of quasi-government trolls—contributed to the influence campaign by serving as a platform for Kremlin messaging to Russian and international audiences.”

“Russia Today round the clock tells the truth about Russia”
Author  Vladimir Molchanov, "Red Star". 03/25/2018 9:36 PM

The Military Academy of the General Staff held an occupation on the problems of information technology.

On March 22, the Military Academy of the General Staff of the Armed Forces of the Russian Federation held a lesson on the topic "Information Wars" within the framework of the course "Army and Society". The lecture was made by Margarita Simonyan, the editor-in-chief of Russia Today television channel and the international news agency "Russia Today".

During the master class, a wide range of issues related to the activities of the Russia Today TV channel on the formation of a positive image of the state abroad and reliable coverage of the activities of the leadership of the Russian Federation for a foreign audience were discussed. The lesson was rather a form of dialogue: the scientific and pedagogical workers and students of the Academy had the opportunity to ask Margarita Simonyan the questions of interest. The speech of the head of Russia Today aroused great professional interest among the audience.

As you know, Russia Today television network includes eight news and documentary channels, information online portals in six languages, as well as the global multimedia agency RUPTLY, which offers exclusive materials to TV channels around the world. From Moscow broadcast news channels RT in English, Arabic, Spanish and RTD documentary channel in Russian and English around the clock. TV channels RT America and RT UK broadcast from their own studios in Washington and London, RT France is broadcasting from Paris. RT is available around the clock for 700 million viewers in more than 100 countries.

Russian servicemen and information front fighters solve the same tasks, defending the interests of the Motherland
Commenting on Margarita Simonyan's speech, the participants of the lesson remarked that it was a great success to communicate with a person who in the West is largely associated with the Russian media and with the power that they represent.

"The questions that were asked, only confirmed that servicemen and fighters of the information front are solving the same tasks, defending the interests of our Motherland," added Andrei Ilnitsky.

The political observer and radio news anchor Vesti.MM Georgiy Saralidze who attended the lecture confirmed the importance of the course "Army and society", noting that such lessons are useful not only for officers, but also for those people who come here as speakers. "I talked with Karen Shakhnazarov, who also spoke here, and he was very interested in talking to the audience," Saralidze said. It's one thing to learn that the army is changing from the TV screen and it's quite another to look at those people who are changing it. It is very important".

The next session of the course "Army and Society" in the Military Academy of the General Staff will be conducted by a Soviet and Russian athlete, State Duma deputy Alexander Karelin.”

RECOMMENDATIONS

- LTG Paul Naksone suggested in recent congressional testimony that a comprehensive US cyber strategy and doctrine that sets operational parameters, retaliatory responses, and norms is needed. It would send a clear message that the US will not tolerate malicious IW operations.

- If it is true that the world is at a transformative stage, as political and military thought leaders claim, then it is time to educate young people about the world evolving and likely to come. Inspiration should be drawn from Gen. George C. Marshall’s 1953

“She watches with the raptor’s eye, trained on distance as she is, and dark—so when she turns to what is close, so intimate and huge, she keeps the gift of sight beyond herself, neither sentimental or detached....”

Who, indeed, watches the passing show with the raptor’s eye? Couple the quick tweet and modalities of social networking with the videoing and blogging obsession, immersion in video games, overtime on the Internet and the constant interruption of face to face interaction by the cell phone, and you have a recipe for attention deficit in the life world. What are educational institutions to do in the culture of online engrossment and the fast electronic update? The humanities might rearticulate its worth in a climate of unexamined absorption.”

A Field Guide to a New Meta-Field, Barbara Stafford
Nobel Peace Prize speech in which he suggested that seniors in high school be taught about war as objectively as possible. That was done for about 10 years at a local private school in Northern Virginia via a seminar titled National Security in the 21st Century. The course featured a yearly visit to the USMC Museum and 12 speakers from the national security community writ large. A syllabus is available out there on the WWW. Adults would benefit too.

- As the Iraqi Ambassador to the USA has said repeatedly, his country suffered at the hands of ISIS propaganda as it flooded social media websites like Twitter and Facebook. “Something must be done,” he said. Such an outcome was predicted in Terror in Cyberspace referenced in the opening of this document.

- Should a driver’s permit be issued to get on the Information Highway? Should some type of critical thinking test be taken before roaming the WWW? How should social media be regulated?

- Russia’s IW, OSINT operations in the USA must continue to be dealt with by Congress and watchdog groups, as well. FARA registration still allows them to operate with impunity. It is a measure of the USA’s respect for the First Amendment that they continue to operate in the USA.

- Access to facilities such as the Pentagon granted to those in the employ of Russian State sponsored facilities should be prohibited. The National Security and Military Strategies make clear that Russia, and China, are peer competitors. OPSEC should recognize that. I had the privilege, surprising, of being granted a Pentagon Press Pass, Building Access (they are never given enough credit for what they do). I was never comfortable giving out my affiliation to Sputnik and was ultimately pulled quietly, and thankfully, from the Pentagon beat.

THE END

I can’t say with absolute certainty why I was released. I was never a speedy newswire writer and there were deadlines to meet. Others were much faster pitching and transcribing testimony, speeches. Initially I racked up about 20 interviews (known as exclusive’s) with former NATO commanders, active duty CG’s, a former SECDEF and others in and out of government, but that began to dry up within a few months of my June 2016 start date as Russia’s activities were revealed.

I confess that the bulk of my behavior at Sputnik USA was an act: I intentionally made mistakes, dumped in pitches to editors I knew would be rejected and argued silly points all to extract responses from my Russian masters. I had a higher purpose there, of course, and that was on behalf of a client. A burden has been lifted and I am overjoyed to be “out” and done with the tasking.
On the Thursday prior to my “expulsion” a professional journalist was in the Sputnik News Wire Bullpen interviewing staff. I passed a note to her while she was talking with an editor. Later, and oddly enough, I had the headphones on listening to Spirit’s hit song 1984. Beverly Hunt tapped me on the shoulder and said, “Do you have something you want to tell me officially, on the record?” I responded that I didn’t know what she was talking about. She said, “I was told by my boss [Mindia] that you passed along information to the reporter.” I asked if she was kidding me. Then I said, “Do you want to know what was in that note? It was a note to the reporter to please pass along my regards to one of her colleagues.”

I started employment with Sputnik USA in late June 2016 and was terminated in early April 2018. I spent approximately one year and a half performing insider research for a client.

Even as the United States of America continues to find its way forward, sometimes stumbling, it remains—and will remain—the greatest country on the planet.
